1. I spent the morning with [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] of the National Security Agency at their communications security office on Nebraska Avenue. It was a very interesting tour, and I was pleased to learn that they are attempting to develop cryptographic machines with only the keyboard classified so that the machine would be unclassified if the keyboard were removed. This technique could be applied to KW-26's, KW-7's, and many other machines. I also observed people making one-time pads for us. (I got the distinct impression that they would be glad to seal them if we asked them to do so. We now do this [REDACTED])

[REDACTED] I am not sure whether there is a special reason for our wanting to do this ourselves, but it would be worth looking into.) I also visited the EOD processing center which NSA is operating in commercial space on Wisconsin Avenue. They have excellent facilities for personnel interviewing, polygraphing, and limited medical evaluation. (I advised Howard Osborn of this facility and asked him to look into it since we might want to use this facility sometime for personnel we prefer not to bring into our own buildings.)

2. I confirmed with Mr. Kirkpatrick that he had become involved in the controversy between DD/P and the Office of Computer Services about the purchase of additional automatic data processing equipment by DD/P. He said that he would call a meeting tomorrow to settle this problem.

3. At the Director's request I talked to Mr. Kadie, Director of Government Sales for the Chrysler Corporation, about the rental of a Chrysler limousine for $2,000 a year. I asked Larry Houston to look over the proposed lease.

4. Howard Osborn showed me a paper which had been drafted by his safety people recommending that we accept the inevitable delay and spend an additional $30,000 for a sprinkler system for the entire Printing Services Building instead of selected locations as now planned. Howard said that he did not choose to sign the paper but wanted me to know their views. I told Howard that it was regrettable they had come up with these recommendations at this late date. While the extra sprinklers would indeed furnish a greater measure of protection, I do not wish to accept the delay in construction which this marginal advantage would certainly necessitate.

5. Admiral Raborn has agreed to present the Distinguished Intelligence Medal to Mr. Kirkpatrick in the auditorium at noon on Friday, 2 July. I told Kirk that I propose not to issue an Agency Notice about the ceremony but that we will circulate this information so that all his friends will know and can attend.
